MANUFACTURES.

The people of Maine are happily situated for conducting manufactures. As a prime esover, we have in Maine a great abundance of water thusband in business, by wearing a sheerful smile power in almost every part of the State. We continually upon her countenance. A man a have the cheapest and safest means of convey. perplexities and gloominess are increased a ance, and only to different parts of bur own wit a continued about we her brow. A pleas-State, but to others, both domestic and foreign Of raw material, in wood, ares, lime, granite, marble, and slate, we have abundance and con veniently situated; while, at the same time we friends which are appointed to torture lost spirhave the means of producing other materials for the manuffenting purposes, to a large extent. By autable encouragement there may be a great ingreate of manufactured productions knowng 40dividual mentanics, and families ... set the modern, and with some kind of manufactures, perhaps, the heat way to promote them is, by associated capital in the hum of annipagios. Capi tal and labor can thus be united and produce their best effects.

The this method there appears to be, among many of the people of Maine, a deep prejudice. Joint stock companies and incorporations are supposed to be west concentrators of wealth, and therefore opposed to the interests of the prople. We think this projudice against corporations is founded in error; and is unjust. Corporations only furnish the means for a direct and profitable union of capital and labor, by which "shilful labor can best be lapplied, and capital find a sale investment; and both united furnish to the consumer the best articles at the longst prices. Instead of their being concentrators of wealth, we deem them rather its distributors.

Where is the wealth of the rich men in our country? Is it hourded in cellars, or locked up in private vaults to be grawn forth only by hearded, by the operation of charters and joint companies, wealth has been distributed all over the land and the sea. We raw see wealth, not in dollars and dimes, in cellars and gaults, but in the iron rails that connect cities in steamboats, vessels and stages In the blast of the iron man named John La Tourett, formerly of this forge in the coal pit and grante quarry in only, had been for some time slightly deranged, engines and inschinery in short, in the means of Boncentrating, stimulating, and siding labor, And age not all these means in their construction, and operation, and use, a benefit-to all? Is labor injured by being furnished with the it on the common level with the interests and welfare of the country, and directats power to the most beneficent end? lait not wrong, then, to entertain a prejudice against a mode of doing business, which in its nature and general operation indesidedly democratic, and beneficial to all the best interests of the country. . If lubor could be successful without capital, or capital productive without labor, we should have no occasion for a union of them; but as they are mutually dependent, an equal association ought to be generously cherished.

Corporations, it is said, are liable to abuse. The same is true of every good thing under heaven. All anuse should be, so far gooded against. Bur the abuse of a thing does not necessarily argue against its use. The best cain her its counterfeit, but the good coin is not go home with me. populated on appoint of it.

We do not nieun to say, however, that the scople of Maire connot do any thing of impostance in manufactures, without nots of incorporations and joint companies They may and can do much to give the right direction to capital and lebor, by engograping individual enterprice by establishing a correct public sentiment, and by eradicating the false views which many entertain of labor.

Mr. Adams moved to fill up the blank in the bill by inserting $25.000. He then in a few very pertinent remarks advocated the bill, as an aut of National Justice, honor, and integrity, and as due to the family of Harrison, as a rec ompener for the unavoidable expeneres attendant on his elevation to the Presidential Chair. He hoped that in accordance with the aniversal feeling of the Prople of the land the bill might pass without reference to party.

The bill was discussed at some length. Mr. Gorden of N York moved an amendmen to strike out $25 000 and insert $6,250. Mr Snyder of Pennsylvania, moved anmendment that $1.000 be paid immediately and $500 semit annually, he the first of January and the first of July, during the life time of Mrs Harrison.
